

Infection Prevention and Control

12 weeks, Distance Learning

Credits: Non-credit bearing
Start date: January 2021

Infection Prevention and Control underpins the prevention and reduction in transmission of infectious diseases such as COVID-19. This course, aimed at health and social care practitioners, provides you with the opportunity to develop an understanding of the principles of infection prevention and control, clinical knowledge of applied microbiology, health care surveillance, outbreak and incident management.

- You will study the role infection prevention and control teams play in the prevention and management of communicable diseases.
- Explore the prevention of healthcare associated infections (HCAIs) and antimicrobial resistance (AMR) to keep patients safe.
- Develop an understanding of infectious disease data and implications for patient safety.
- Apply the principles of infection prevention and control within your clinical practice.

Entry requirements

You must:

- Be working in a health or social care environment
- Have access to a computer with a reliable internet connection.
- Have the ability to access and use online study guidance and support.

Course structure

You will be taught through distance learning. Your studies will be supported by the University's virtual learning environment.

Career opportunities

This course will support you to prevent and reduce the transmission of infectious diseases such as COVID-19 in a range of health and social care settings

Fees

This course is eligible for funding from Health Education Yorkshire and the Humber. Detailed guidance on such funding arrangements is available in their funding guide.

If you are not eligible for funding, the tuition fee for this course for 2020/21 entry is £460.90. Tuition fees will cover the cost of your study at the University as well as charges for registration, tuition, supervision and examinations.

How to book

We are currently accepting online applications. To secure your place please visit: <https://pt-onlineapps.hud.ac.uk/>

Further information

For further course information please contact:

Admissions Team
Email: ssprd@hud.ac.uk
Visit our website: courses.hud.ac.uk

This flyer is provided for information only and will not form part of your student contract. For full, up to date details on our courses, including when and how that information may change, visit our website at www.hud.ac.uk/courses